

MARTHA LANIER

A motivational speaker who challenges audiences to think and take action.

When a person's self-confidence, personal pride and feeling of being valued are increased, their productivity, leadership skills and overall success is also dramatically increased.

Right from her opening, attendees are up and out of their seats participating in a variety of exercises. When they are having fun, they are more attentive and retain more information. Audiences experience her programs with her wit and unique storytelling skills so that key learning points are memorable!

Martha Lanier is passionate about her unrelenting belief that ANYTHING is possible when you are willing to stretch your comfort zone and believe in yourself. Her signature story allows her audiences to share the anticipation and adventure she experienced when she went skydiving on her fiftieth birthday. The story includes animation and humor which reinforces the message.

Content for her programs is based on her skydiving adventure, past personal experiences, wife for over 37 years, mother of three children, grandmother of six and knowledge from extensive research. She has worked in the corporate arena as an administrative assistant, executive assistant, office manager, HR director and VP of Relocation Services.

Based out of Atlanta, Martha travels nationwide delivering keynotes, concurrent sessions and seminars to corporations, associations and individual organizations. Her first priority is to deliver a powerful and memorable program for your audience. Her second priority is to support you in producing a smooth and successful meeting.
